Notes

Located in the heart of historic downtown Providence, this 52-room boutique hotel housed in an early 20th century brick building has been thoughtfully restored by Brooklyn-based owner and designer ASH NYC. This picturesque 5-story hotel sits in the center of a vibrant culinary and cultural scene, a few blocks from Brown University and the Rhode Island School of Design.

The property features unique interiors that give a fresh take on comfort and simplicity, while retaining many of the building's handsome original features, including its mosaic tile flooring and brick façade. ASH gave the hotel a timeless look that marries old and new, blending custom-designed furniture and fixtures with fine European and American antiques, sourced from dealers and homes around the globe. Few of the 52 rooms or suites are alike - all include vintage pieces and artwork, custom-designed fixtures, and local handcrafted furniture.

There are several food and beverage venues at the Hotel, a local coffee bar located in lobby; a private karaoke bar; hotel bar, and a restaurant housed in a portion of the hotel that was formerly a gentlemen's club.
